

A common call to work and think in unity that can be heard on marae across the nation is “Tuturu whakamāua, kia tīna” The response in agreement is “Tīna” this gives body and support to the statement. This section of the unit encourages students and educators to take action regarding what they have learnt.

This part of the unit guides students and educators through the production of an action plan by using the inquiry process. There are no set expectations of the way classes choose to respond to the learning that has taken place in their classrooms. Classes may choose to respond by developing their own resources, planting rongoa gardens or undertaking some community service that will be of benefit to local kaumātua.

.Whakatauki:

Mā te huruhuru te manu ka rere.

–Their feathers allow birds to fly.

(This saying implies that in order to get things done you need the right tools.)
