ARE THERE ANY STORIES ABOUT EACH BIRD?

FACT: There used to be huge inland colonies of seabirds. They kept the land and forest fertilised with their droppings.

Can you learn more about the numbers of each bird in old days and if anything has happened to them. If something has happened why?

EXTINCT BIRDS AND ENDANGERED BIRDS

In 1840 what we now call the Wairarapa was home to millions of birds. There were all sorts of birds living everywhere.

Here are endangered birds that you will longer see in the wild in the Wairarapa. You will find kiwi, hihī and kokako at Pukaha Mount Bruce where you can also see south island takahe.

Can you find out some facts on what happened to these birds. When did they become extinct?

EXTINCT BIRDS

Here are some extinct birds that used to live in the Wairarapa.

ENDANGERED BIRDS

Here are endangered birds that you will no longer find in the wild. That is unless you visit Pukaha Mount Bruce where there are kiwi and kokako. You will also see south island takahe at Pukaha Mount Bruce.

IF YOU ARE LUCKY...

You could see these endangered birds in their natural habitat as well as Pukaha Mount Bruce.

Some birds like the tieke are no longer found in some areas like the Wairarapa and are endangered in the places they still live.
