

Websites

A google search will take you to the following websites. It may be necessary to search using key words like "Wairarapa" or "Wairarapa Maori" or sometimes there is a title in a menu called Maori. On sites such as Journal Of The Polynesian Society searches can be done on places and people. Really it is a matter of having a look around and finding the information that is of relevance to your task.

- Rangitāne o Wairarapa
- Māori Maps
- Masterton District Library and Wairarapa Archives
- Aratoi
- Ngāi Tumapuhia A Rangi
- Ngāti Hinewaka
- Papawai
- Wairarapa Moana
- The Journal of the Polynesian Society
- Te Ara Encyclopaedia of New Zealand
- Niupepa: Māori Newspapers
- National Library of New Zealand
 - ◆ Timeframes
 - ◆ Tapuhi
- Matapihi
- New Zealand Archaeological Association Website
- New Zealand Historic Places Trust
- AstronomyNZ – Home
- Te Ao Hou
- Te Ara o ngā Tūpuna
- Fletcher's index of Maori names
- Wellington City Libraries
- Dictionary of New Zealand biography
- Eketahuna Kiwi Country
- Turtin deeds of the Wairarapa (brings up numerous sites of interest)
- The Land of Tara and they who settled it
- Waitangi Tribunal
- National Maori Land Information
- Ngā Moteatea
- Ko Ngā Waiata Maori, by Sir George Grey
- Ross Himona
- Maori Land Court (National Maori Land Information)
- Te Puni Kokiri (Land Information Database)
- Ministry of Education
 - Te Kete Ipurangi
 -

Local libraries

Masterton District Library and Wairarapa Archives

Masterton District Library and Wairarapa Archives have the most extensive collection of books and newspapers that contain Maori subjects. Some are books on an area such as Te Wharau or Gladstone School that has a Maori chapter while others are specific such as Te Ore Ore Marae Centenary, Tuhirangi Marae and Huariki Marae.